

Teaching & Learning Faculty Workshop

Sponsored by the MSU Dean of Students Office and the MSU Teaching & Learning Committee

Strategies for Responding to Disruptive or Inappropriate Behavior in the Classroom (and beyond)

Most MSU students understand behavioral expectations as members of our academic community. For the students who simply do not “get it,” MSU faculty have a number of resources at their disposal while working with students who are disruptive in the classroom or who demonstrate inappropriate behavior.

During this interactive session, MSU Dean of Students Dr. Matthew Caires will offer some insights into those resources while also offering an overview of the current legal landscape that has shaped the contemporary relationship we have with our students.

Special guests starring as disruptive students include:

- Sue Monahan, Associate Dean, College of Letters & Science
- Phil Gaines, Associate Professor, Department of English

*This workshop is worth
1 unit toward the
Certificate of Teaching Enhancement.

Click here for more information.

Wednesday, Dec. 7, 2011

SUB Room 233

Lunch Served: 11:45 a.m.

Presentation: 12:00-1:15 p.m.

Please RSVP to annea@montana.edu
by Tuesday, Dec. 6, 2011

This session will be videotaped and posted within a week following the event at the Teaching & Learning website events page.

